The Final Judgment was in session. Supreme God was on trial. Gradually all the deeds He had committed were brought against Him. All were carefully studied, analyzed inside out and placed on a scale.

On one side of the scale they heaped up the bad deeds, and on the other side His defense tried to gather the good deeds. After this classification of His deeds everybody was tensely waiting what side the scale dish will tilt to. Everyone suddenly became relieved. The scale remained in balance. On one side of the scale there was only one good deed: "God had never denied Himself."
